Abstract

A new stage of development of the Far East of Russia begins as the part of the program of rapid industrialization and increasing the country's defense since the 1930s. In parallel with large industrial companies workers' settlements and cities were based in the Far East. The dynamics of formation and growth of new cities (Birobidzhan, Magadan, Komsomolsk-on-Amur) are displayed in the article. The specificity of urban design in terms of territorial remoteness of the region is submitted.
